Instructor: Andy Poe, 1129 New Science Facility, 227-1598

The course covers the object oriented design paradigm of programming, and is required for the Computer Science and Network Computing majors. You will learn how to design objects for efficient use and reuse of code.

Text: No required text. There is an optional text: Object-Oriented Software Development Using Java, Second Edition by Xiaoping Jia. This is available from the University bookstore or online.

Courseload: There will be no exams. The assignments will be a series of (sometimes quite challenging) Java programs that exemplify the power of object-oriented design. There might also be some written assignments, but not necessarily.

Office Hours: Monday Wednesday Thursday Friday 3:00 — 5:00 P.M., or by appointment.

Disability: If you have a need for disability-related accommodations or services, please inform the Coordinator of Disability Services in the Disability Services Office at 1104 University Center (227-1737). Reasonable and effective accommodations and services will be provided to students if requests are made in a timely manner, with appropriate documentation, in accordance with federal, state, and University guidelines.
